

Programme title: Bachelor in Philology

Qualification: Bachelor in Philology

Programme Type: Four year programme

Mode of study: Full-time, Part-time

The mission of the study programme “Bachelor in Philology” is training well-qualified socially responsible translators and interpreters who possess universal linguistic and cultural competences together with translation skills and knowledge in translation to meet demands of international and national labour market in the globalized world.

The programme’s educational goals are designed to:

- ensure training of bachelors in Philology taking into account requirements of the labour market, to form competence and skills by introducing innovations in education;
- provide basic knowledge of fundamental and applied subjects necessary for competence of bachelors in Philology;
- familiarise students with effective translation tools to meet demand for high quality translation services, establish and maintain competitive advantage of the programme graduates worldwide;
- prepare specialists for organisations and enterprises of all branches of the economy who are able to provide translation and interpreting in different environment and possess practical skills to develop the high level of competence in translating various types of texts from two foreign languages in various areas such as economics, law, natural sciences, media, computer science, or texts for the arts and social sciences as well as business texts;
- develop in students the ability to apply the knowledge and skills they have acquired to both theoretical and applied problems in translation;
- develop the students’ powers of analysis and judgement;
- develop graduates as social individuals who are ready to solve certain problems and tasks of communicative and social activity.
- provide students with the knowledge and skill base, from which they can proceed to further studies in Philology, Linguistics, Translation Studies, and other related fields or in multidisciplinary areas that involve translation;
- develop in students, through their studies, a range of generic skills that will be of value in employment and self-employment as well as in their future career in the private or public sector.

The Strategic plan for development and improvement of training of translators and interpreters taking into consideration demands of labour market and educational endeavours of citizens

Structure of the Study Programme

The Intended Learning Outcomes

The Catalogue of courses