

Programme title: Master in Philology

Qualification: Master in Philology

Programme Type: 1,5 year programme

Mode of study: Full-time

The mission of the study programme “Master in Philology” (with a specialization in Translation Studies) isto foster a new generation of translators and interpreters with a professional outlook, linguistic and cultural competences, as well as the skills and confidence to meet the challenges of both the local and regional translation markets in the years to come. It also aims to provide a comprehensive and in-depth study of the multifaceted issues in translation.

1.2. Educational goals of the programme

The programme’s educational goals are designed to:

- ensure training of Masters in Philology using a competency based approach to the education process in accordance with modern European educational standards and requirements of the national and global labour market;
- provide students with systematic knowledge and skills in translation and interpreting required for formation of the competences of Master in Philology with a specialization in Translation Studies;
- train highly qualified translators that will be experts in establishing communication primarily among members of various cultures and languages to professionally meet current market demands and enable to adapt to the future needs of the translation market;
- ensure a high level of competence in translation theory so that those holding a master’s degree will be able to form their own understanding of theoretical principles and assess them, apply them to their work, and identify and solve the problems that they will encounter in their work as professional translators;
- develop graduates as mature social individuals capable of solving complex communications challenges and social activities within their competence;
- improve the learning skills that enable graduates to continue their study in accordance with the concept of "lifelong learning" in a manner that may be largely self-directed or autonomous;
- educate highly trained holders of master’s degrees and prepare them for further study at the doctoral level

The Strategic plan for development and improvement of training of translators and interpreters taking into consideration demands of labour market and educational endeavours of citizens
